

49 State Street, constructed in the early 1820s, currently houses the Emily Knapp Museum and Library of Local History as well as the Village of Brockport offices. Built in the style of a Dutch row house, it was once the Seymour family home, then the Seymour Library. This historic building appropriately houses an extensive collection of Brockport's past.